"All wrong." Because this kind of fictional fact, like maps of imaginary realms, is of real interest to some. She had planted a young rowan from the Grove beside the fountain. They came to be sure it was. His humble teachers had taught him all the words they knew of the Language of the Making. Among them had been neither the name of semen nor the name of quicksilver. But his lips parted, his tongue moved. "Ayezur" he said. He snorted. I felt drops of his saliva, and before I had time to be terrified he butted me in. going all untuned and hoarse. "When the balance is wrong, holding still is not good. It must get more wrong," said the Patterner. "Until -" He made a quick gesture of reversal with his open hands, down going up and up down. Then he was back in himself, with the fierce hurt in his arm and hip and head, sick and dizzy in the blind blackness. When he moved, he whimpered; but he sat up. I have to live, he thought. I have to remember how to live. How to make light. I have to remember. I have to remember the shadows of the leaves. there was no room for two sorcerers in one village and he'd be back, maybe, when that man, or. time without anger -- of that poor fellow who now, three hours after my arrival, was undoubtedly. "But the spirit of rivalry worked in the boy as he grew to be a man. It's a strong spirit on Roke: always to do better than the others, always to be first... The art becomes a contest, a game. The end becomes a means to an end less than itself... There was no man there more greatly gifted than this man, yet if any did better than he in any thing, he found it hard to bear. It frightened him, it galled him. shadows, though looking very ill. "Come on," Gift said, and got him on his feet, and walked slowly. "And you didn't. . ." "She will when the time comes. As he said "Back," his left hand struck down on the air like a knife, and Ayeth fell backward against a chair, staring. "Spoken like a man," said Veil with her gentle, wounded smile. indignant before, about my bringing home strangers?" He had lost something and had to find it. He did not know what he had lost, but it was in the fiery tower, the place where stone stairs went up among smoke and fumes. He had to go there. He got to his feet and shuffled, lame and unsteady, back down the valley. controlling spells that wove a darkness round him. But when Otter could do so, then it was not so. yes! This is the way." Yet he was following Otter. His touch and his spells pushed him, rushed. "Once in his lifetime, if he's lucky, a wizard finds somebody he can talk to." Nemmerle had said that to Dulse a night or two before he left Roke, a year or two before Nemmerle was chosen Archmage. He had been the Master Patterner and the kindest of all Dulse's teachers at the School. "I think, if you stayed, Heleth, we could talk." "Nothing. I thought you were a hundred." had done. very little else. It surprised him a little. He thought he ought to be homesick, to think about. One of the dogs, her."Is it in the earth?".His spies had been coming to him for a year or more muttering about a secret insurgency all across his realm, rebellious groups of sorcerers that called themselves the Hand. Eager to find his enemy, he had one such group investigated. They turned out to be a lot of old women, midwives, carpenters, a ditchdigger, a tinsmith's prentice, a couple of little boys. Humiliated and enraged, Early had them put to death along with the man who reported them to him. It was a public execution, in Losen's name, for the crime of conspiracy against the King. There had perhaps not been enough of that kind of intimidation lately. But it went against his grain. He didn't like to make a public spectacle of fools who had tricked him into fearing them. He would rather have dealt with them in his own way, in his own time. To be nourishing, fear must be immediate; he needed to see people afraid of him, hear their terror, smell it, taste it. But since he ruled in Losen's name, it was Losen who must be feared by the armies and the peoples, and he himself must keep in the background, making do with slaves and prentices..The wizard's eyes narrowed and his smile broadened..When he saw it, faint and green above the misty sea, he cried out-the men in the ships heard the dragon scream-and flew on faster, leaving them to follow him to the conquest..III.
